Mr. Etra, with regard to your "debts," I trust you are aware, as a lawyer, of the significance of your being under the Restraining Order due to your status as a judgment debtor. Any payment of "debts" (with very limited statutory exceptions likely inapplicable here, such as child support) must go only to the judgment creditor Benthos, and cannot be paid to any third party. If you violate the Restraining Order, you will be held to account and subject to contempt of court remedies, and we will seek to recoup any such payments you may make in violation of your legal obligations.

Be advised accordingly.
